The seven Bibles of the world are the Koran, of the Mohammedans; the Tri Pices of the Buddhists; the Five Kings, of the Chinese; the Three Vedas, of the Hindoos; the Zend-Avesta, of the Persians; the Mormon, and the Scriptures of the Christians.

The winter of 1865-66 will be recorded as the best cattlemen in Western South Dakota have ever experienced. Cattle are in splendid condition now, when they would be thin if at all. Grass has an early start, and the indications are that the beef-shipping season will open much earlier than usual.

The well known submerged forest at Whitman Bay, Sunderland, has been the subject of much conversation lately, because of more of it having been seen than has been the case for some years. Recently an interesting find had been made in connection with it. The relic was part of a fir tree, which was in the mid stage between coal and wood.

The dressing of codfish is an operation requiring skill and rapidity. A man can catch the fish, clean it, cut the throat and rip it open and pass it to the "header," who removes the head and entrails; and the "splitter" then splits the fish open and takes out the part of the backbone, and the "salter" piles up the fish in tiers in the hold of the boat and salts them.

When two Negroes, a people of the Philippine Islands, are united, the whole tribe is assembled and the affianced pair climb two trees growing near to each other; the elders then bend the branches until the heads of the couple meet. When the heads have thus come into contact, the marriage is locally acknowledged, and the rejoicings take place, a fantastic dance completing the ceremony.

The Maldivian Islanders eat alone. Before a meal they retire to the most secluded spot they can find and eat with drawn blinds or surrounded by a screen. The custom is to eat in modesty. In days gone by the savage no doubt concealed himself lest some man stronger than he should snatch his hard-earned food away.

Switzerland, France, Belgium, Great Britain, Germany and Italy have been admitted to the benefits of the international copyright law. For an American to secure copyright in Great Britain the title must be entered at Stationer's hall, London, the fee for which is five shillings, and the work must be published in Great Britain simultaneously with its publication in the United States.

The great bustard is the rarest bird that comes under the head of game. This bird formerly haunted all the level countries of England, and was particularly common on Salisbury plain. From the reign of Henry VIII. repeated measures were taken in order to protect it, and it is expressly included under the head of game in the statute of the first year of the reign of William IV., which codified and reformed the laws relating to game.

A French savant thinks that by the year 2000 a spiritual chemistry will have been discovered that should eventually change human nature. This will be greatly due to chemistry utilizing the heat of the sun and tapping the central heat of the globe. Under the reign of chemistry the earth, we are told, will become a vast pleasure garden, and the human race will live in peace and plenty.

Vienna has a new burgomaster, Herr Strobach, elected to take the place of Dr. Lueger, who has been so many times elected by the emperor. Apparently, however, the frying pan is not to be the fate of Herr Strobach for the fire, for Strobach is also an anti-Semite, if not quite as notoriously so as Lueger. At this point the matter is less interesting as a racial issue than as a contest between the government and the people. The former has received a direct slap in this election and the latter has shown its strength in holding out the longer—the emperor or the electors?

THE TWO CLOCK TRAIN.

How It Happened That the Man Who Wanted It Did Not Get It.

It was a very small Western town and the only train out of it that night left at 12 o'clock. The traveling man and his wife were in the night car, and the only train out of it that night left at 12 o'clock. The traveling man and his wife were in the night car, and the only train out of it that night left at 12 o'clock.

"Say! ye zee the man what wants the 2 o'clock train?"

"Well, ye zee shalpe an hour longer, for she's so spectral, she's so spectral."

The heavy feet shuffled off down the hall, and silence ensued. Another hour had passed, when Pat again knocked.

"Say! ye zee the felly what said he wanted to catch the 2 o'clock train?"

"Yes!" and then the traveling man hastily springing from his bed.

HAWK-EYE JACK.

Every one who has crossed what used to be known as the Great American Desert, embracing the plains that lie between Atchison, Kan., and Denver, Colo., will recall easily the well known Hawk-Eye Ranch, where, in the early days, wagon trains used to stop to renew their butlers' stores, and where lightning whiskey was sold by the glass. The ranch was kept by one Jack Reed, a literal type of the adventurous frontiersman, who bore the name of Hawk-Eye, from the wonderful blackness and brightness of those orbs with which nature had endowed him. Jack Reed, though forty-eight years old at the time of which I write, could see farther over the prairies than the best scout who ever squinted along the barrel of a rifle.

No one knows this man's history previous to the winter of 1860, when he arrived and established himself at this spot on the North Platte, which place has since been the headquarters of the ranch. Here he erected an adobe house, which from time to time he strengthened into a miniature fort to protect himself and his family from the Indians. Indian Hawk-Eye Jack was a wonderful shot, and especially at long range, his extraordinary eyesight being his chief advantage. I have never seen but one man his equal as a marksman, and his speciality was long range. Something would stop at the ranch and boast of their being good shots, and perhaps challenge Hawk-Eye Jack to a contest. He would accept on equal distance and target; then, when they had fired, he would bring his rifle to the target and shoot at them instantly. His ball was always found to have entered the same hole as his opponent's bullet had made, and "Hawk-Eye" is his mark," he would say, coolly.

"You can't see a bullet hole that distance," he would say.

"Fifty dollars against twenty I cover the two balls by another shot?"

The strangers found that they had got a man who could shoot only but to lose, and so they acknowledged "beat" and went on their way.

One day Jack was taking a large surveying party to Colorado, and we made up our train at Atchison, containing of fourteen men and horses, and some outfitting material to transport in the wagons. It was before the iron horse had crossed that adobe route or reached the mouth of the river.

We could not make more than twenty miles a day in the way of progress, and our train was a long one, making all necessary arrangements against the roving Indians, who were the literal hand of the plains. As we were just about a couple of miles from reaching Hawk-Eye Ford, I ordered a horse to be saddled and a pack of traps and a couple of men to be sent on ahead to leave the broken one behind.

During the progress of this duty the men, I found, and my horse, went forward to visit Jack's establishment. It happened to be a very quiet day, and there was scarcely a sound about the premises save the family itself. The ranch was fully twelve miles from the mouth of the river, and a Holiday mail-wagon passed, or an occasional mail-train came near by, but that one came there at all, and the only sound about the place was the dropping in, and occasionally some of the three venturesome men, who, as we were told, were good horses, crossed the plains without a word.

As I rode up to the ranch I found the men, I found, and my horse, went forward to visit Jack's establishment. It happened to be a very quiet day, and there was scarcely a sound about the premises save the family itself.

THAT BOND CONTRACT.

Secretary Carlisle Testifies Before the Judiciary Committee.

Washington, June 15.—Secretary Carlisle was examined under oath by the Judiciary Committee today. He testified that he had no knowledge of the late recent bond sales. The examination was held in the Senate chamber, and Senators Harris, Wallahall, Jones, of Nevada, and Platt, being present.

Carlisle was asked by the committee for a fuller account of the first bond contract with the Morgan syndicate, which was made by the late President Cleveland. His main purpose, Secretary Carlisle testified, was to secure the sale of gold from this country. Mr. Vest asked who made the first suggestion as to the protection of the gold, and then asked the Morgan syndicate. The secretary answered that the first draft was made in his private office and then taken to an adjoining room and shown to Mr. Morgan and Francis Lynde Stetson, after which no changes were made. This was the Mr. Stetson, the secretary explained in response to inquiries, who had been the law partner of the president. Mr. Vest asked why the contract had been given to the syndicate, and the secretary explained the great emergency existing at the time, and that the syndicate was the only one who could meet the demand for gold.

"They will pick me off from these days, but I am making money out of it," he said. "I will sell for me life dearly when the time comes. You saw her shoot just now. I have taught her so that she can fire a rifle as well as the Indians. I have marked them, and last fall, when the redskins made a raid upon us, and I got some fine prizes, I shot a chief dead in his saddle out of that loop-hole."

You never had negotiations with any other bankers outside of the Morgan syndicate?" asked Mr. Vest.

Carlisle was again asked, but no negotiations were opened," said the secretary. Mr. Carlisle went on to explain that the president was kept in the dark as to all phases of the negotiations. One of Mr. Vest's questions referred to the time of the sale of the gold, and the secretary answered that it was in the month of August, 1893, and that it was with that of Mr. Belmont, to which the secretary referred, that the syndicate was giving information to Congress as to the close of the bond transaction was sent at Washington July 2 p. m. To Mr. Vest's question as to why a public bond was made by private contract, Mr. Carlisle answered that it was a matter of necessity, and that the government had long contemplated a bond issue.

Carlisle was asked by the committee for a fuller account of the first bond contract with the Morgan syndicate, which was made by the late President Cleveland. His main purpose, Secretary Carlisle testified, was to secure the sale of gold from this country. Mr. Vest asked who made the first suggestion as to the protection of the gold, and then asked the Morgan syndicate. The secretary answered that the first draft was made in his private office and then taken to an adjoining room and shown to Mr. Morgan and Francis Lynde Stetson, after which no changes were made. This was the Mr. Stetson, the secretary explained in response to inquiries, who had been the law partner of the president. Mr. Vest asked why the contract had been given to the syndicate, and the secretary explained the great emergency existing at the time, and that the syndicate was the only one who could meet the demand for gold.

"They will pick me off from these days, but I am making money out of it," he said. "I will sell for me life dearly when the time comes. You saw her shoot just now. I have taught her so that she can fire a rifle as well as the Indians. I have marked them, and last fall, when the redskins made a raid upon us, and I got some fine prizes, I shot a chief dead in his saddle out of that loop-hole."

On Friday evening last at the sleeper opera house the commencement exercises of The Brainerd High school occurred at which time Henry McKay, Daisy E. Mills, Elizabeth D. Prince, Alice G. Hurley, Inez C. Eastman, Jay S. Patek, William L. Bean, Millicent V. Mahan, Florence F. Merritt and Lena N. Dix received their diplomas. The exercises were exceedingly fine, but space will not admit of an individual mention of each member of the class. The audience assembled to listen to the oratory and essays filled the spacious building and many were unable to gain admission, the aisles and every available niche of space being occupied.

Christina Larson and Hannah Nelson, of this city, and Miss Minnie Stalland, of Wilmar, and Messrs. Samuel Ellefson, of Brainerd, and T. Stalland, of Wilmar. After the ceremonies a reception followed at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Rowe, where a wedding feast was partaken of and congratulations offered. Numerous fine presents were received. The couple will live at St. Paul, for which place they left yesterday.

Once in awhile these little rays of sunshine penetrate themselves into the otherwise monotonous life of the poetical man and woman. Cupid is not a respecter of persons and he releases the shaft that speeds his arrows of love regardless of where they will find a resting place. Mr. Litchfield, who has been in the profession many years, has just returned from a tour ore the wound that was to prove fatal. The little lady who has undertaken to share his prosperity and adversity is, or was, Miss Laura Adela Miller, a resident of Blissfield, Mich. She has been in the profession for quite a few years and possessing all the qualifications to make a good wife.

Among the many incidents that have contributed the influence to make the present season of Miss Anna Eva Fay a pleasant one, was one last night that was not down upon the nightly programme of the wonderful little woman. It did not happen until after the entertainment of the theatre was over and all the company had returned to the Arlington, where they are stopping. The story, told in brief, is as follows: On arrived here yesterday from the west, Mr. Neil Litchfield, the droll man of many faces who lends his assistance in making Miss Fay's performance a success, immediately went to meet the company from Chicago, and on its arrival welcomed the other principal in the surprise that was to follow. Last night after the show the company, on their arrival at the hotel, found Mr. Litchfield, Miss Miller and the Rev. L. Brethren awaiting them, and in the parlors of the hotel the beautiful ceremony that binds two loving hearts together was read, and the two who had heretofore wended their way through life in celibacy, were made man and wife, they had embraced that law of mathematics that makes two one. The congratulations of those present were, of course, showered upon the happy pair and then discussed in detail before a beautifully supplied board that prepared for the finale of the occasion.

"Neil" should be congratulated upon the diplomacy he displayed in keeping the matter a secret, for no one was absolutely certain of such an event until very near the final

D. Ellis, who was sentenced at Jackson three weeks ago to a term of five years in the penitentiary for the crime. Ellis fled north of Pillager, and in his house was found an organ and clock that were stolen from a school house in Mr. Forsyth's county. The gentleman stated that he has already picked up nine of the horses and returned them to their rightful owners, and has four or five more to look up. John Shultz, of Martin county, and M. Lockner, of Brown county, are the sheriff, looking for horses which they have lost, one of which has been found and a suit is pending in its possession with the party who bought it after Ellis brought it into this county. Ellis had been serving on the penitentiary for two years.

Liable to Swipe Them.

Rev. Moultrie has the boys of his

Brainerd School in training to meet a nine made up of the Episcopal Sunday School of Brainerd, on the railroad picnic day. If the Brainerd lads are built upon equally liberal lines as is the Rev. Pentreath, the Detroit ladies will find it necessary to get down to business and play ball for all there is in them. If Pentreath goes to coaching and becomes excited he is liable to swipe Moutrie and his whole band crew from the diamond, with one full swing.—Detroit Record.

Anna Eay Fay.

The performance given at Sleepers Opera House last evening by Anna Eay Fay would simply baffle anybody. It was most unaccountable. There was a liberal sprinkling of lawyers and other professional men, and their amazement was even greater than that of other people. Miss Fay seems to understand the occult science as thoroughly as the ordinary mortal does the simplest thing in the world. Along her special line she certainly has no rival and it is useless to try to describe her performances. She must be seen in order to give one a knowledge of her wonderful powers. She is to-day the talk of the town, and even the most skeptical appear to have acquired an absorbing interest. There is plenty of comedy in the entertainment given, although her company is a small one, and at frequent intervals during last evening's peals of laughter from the audience gave evidence of thorough appreciation on the part of the people who were present. Miss Fay and her company are here on a three nights' engagement, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. If you want to enjoy an entertainment of unusual merit, do not miss this opportunity to see Miss Fay. The prices are 35 and 50 cents for reserved seats, 35 cents for general admission, and 25 cents for the gallery.

Wholesale Horse Stealing.
Geo. W. Forsyth, sheriff of Watonwan county, is in the city, and has been in this vicinity for some days looking up stolen horses which had been run into Morrison, Cass and Crow Wing counties by O. D. Ellis, who was sentenced at Jackson three weeks ago to a term of five years in the penitentiary for the crime. Ellis lived north of Pillager, and in his house was found an organ and clock that were stolen from a school house in Mr. Forsyth's county. The gentleman stated that he has already picked up nine of the horses and returned them to their rightful owners, and has four or five more to look up. John Shultz, of Martin county, and Wm. Lockner, of Brown county, are with the sheriff, looking for horses which they have lost, one of which has been found and a suit is pending for its possession with the party who had bought it after Ellis brought it into this county. Ellis had been carrying on the business for two years and had been so successful that he became reckless and did his horse stealing in an open manner. He pleaded guilty when arraigned in court.

BRAINERD'S FOURTH OF JULY.

Arrangements are Fast Being Completed For One of the Grandest Celebrations Ever Known.

That the coming celebration will be a grand success goes without saying, for the right people have charge the matter to make failure impossible. While the entire details are not complete enough has been done to present the following for which we are under obligations to Bro. Stivers who is general manager of the occasion, which is a mere skeleton as compared with the programme in its entirety which will be given in our next issue:

A great Calithumpian parade over a mile long at 10 o'clock. The boys will be mounted on mules, horses, oxen and cows, and many will be on foot. All kinds of vehicles will be used. Col. A. L. Hoffman will be the commander.

An intensely interesting mounted sword contest will take place in the street next to the City Park at 2 o'clock, between Alderman Rheinthal and Policeman Hurley.

The oration will be delivered by Hon. David B. Johnson in the Park at 2:30 o'clock. Mr. Johnson is one of the best speakers in the state.

Col. J. E. Ireland will have charge of the Bicycle Brigade.

Then there will be a fine program of races and athletic contests.

The City Band will furnish music. There will be a large dancing pavilion with good music.

V. Voller and Mons Mahlum will have one of the largest refreshment boweries ever seen in Northern Minnesota.

A splendid game of base ball will take place at Athletic Park at 4 o'clock.

There will be a race between the old and the new fire departments at 7:30 p. m. for a purse of $25.

The best display of fireworks ever seen in this part of the state will be exhibited in the evening.

Etc., etc., etc., everything in every direction. Look out for complete program next week.

For the calithumpian parade, horns played in comedy, ward captains have been appointed as follows:

First Ward—Ed. Chamberlain.

Second Ward—Alba Hall.

Third Ward—A. Rheinthal.

Fourth Ward—Thomas Crawford.

Fifth Ward—Chas. H. Laichner.

Col. Hoffman desires all who can aid by providing four-legged animals of any kind, vehicles, or anything else for the parade, to notify the captains in their several wards.

Liab to Swipe Them.

Rev. Moultrie has the boys of his Sunday School in training to meet a nine made up of the Episcopal Sunday School of Brainerd, on the railroad picnic day. If the Brainerd lads are built upon equally liberal lines as is the Rev. Pentreath, the Detroit lads will find it necessary to get down to business and play ball for all there is in them. If Pentreath goes to coaching and becomes excited he is liable to swipe Moultrie and his whole bantam crew from the diamond, with one full swoop.—Detroit Record.

Anna Eva Fay.

The performance given at Sleeper Opera House last evening by Anna Eva Fay would mystify and baffle anybody. It was simply unaccountable. There was a liberal sprinkling of lawyers and other professional men and business men in the audience, and their amazement was even greater than that of other people. Miss Fay seems to understand the occult science as thoroughly as the ordinary mortal does the simplest thing in the world. Along her special line she certainly is without a rival and it is useless to try to describe her performances. She must be seen in order to give one a knowledge of her wonderful powers. She is to-day the talk of the town, and even the most skeptical appear to have acquired an absorbing interest. There is plenty of comedy in the entertainment given, although her company is a small one, and at frequent intervals during last evening's performance of thorough appreciation on the part of the people who were present. Miss Fay and her company are here on a three nights' engagement, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week. If you want to enjoy an entertainment of unusual merit, do not miss this opportunity to see Miss Fay. The prices are 35 and 50 cents for reserved seats, 35 cents for general admission, and 25 cents for the gallery.
